Party Dictation in Kentucky.

Is it a species of moral cowardice- track, the fear of the party lash-that makes so many intelligent voters vote for the nominee in every recurring election, be be mint or sinner, competent or tocompetent? Or is it enipable ignorance? Every voter who can read and write has it in his power to inform himself on enrient events, and to acquire at least a general groundwork of our political superstructure. Because our torefathers were Democrats, is no reason we should be; neither are we dotybound as good citizens or intelligent Democrats, to cole for a man simply because he is the nominee of the Democratic party.

Now, Mr. Tate, although the nomi nee of a few committeemen, was voted time-hunored Democratic doctrine of slanguter. Is it not more commendtlouist than to yote for a chronic office. ism. seeker and office-holder, who cares nothing for Democratic principles any further than to the extent that it may induct him into office?

Would it not have been more interests as eltizens and voters to have dictate Dick Tate to us, and to have voted for and elected Fox, that the was found. books in the Treasury office might have been examined? And were they exted by a new Treasurer might we "Something rotten to Denmark ""

Retrenchment and reform has often been preached in Kentucky by Democratic demagogues, but so soon as they get auto office they forget all about liand often, no doubt, become spoilsmen So long as we Democratic voters are suplue and indifferent; so long as we support the numbree in every instance;

so long as we allow a few to dictate to us, and so long as we remain ignorant of our honest, true and exact duty as citizens and taxpayers, just that long will we be under a cloud, than ciaily and progresslyely, as a party and as a State respectively

If we have elements of reform withtu ourselves and amid our own ranks, it is high time they were brought out. W. H. CUNDIFF.
